

Liam O'Connor is a West Genesee graduate, engaged young leader, and member of the LGBTQ+ community. Recognized by the Post Standard in October 2021 as one of Central New York's best and brightest, Liam worked at the Office of County Executive Ryan McMahon through a period of dynamic highs and lows for Central New York. Liam coordinated both individual and community-wide distribution of free at-home Covid tests and masks to protect our most vulnerable county residents through the instability of the difficult months of the Delta and Omicron variants. Liam also assisted with several projects associated with Onondaga County's $89 Million in Federal American Rescue Plan Funds. Liam also volunteers his time as an advisor to the Friends of the Rosamond Gifford Zoo, primarily in areas of youth engagement. Liam currently studies Communications at Le Moyne College, where he is a recipient of the 'Heights Award', which recognizes students for their service to the community.
